OUR STORY

DK Fibreglass Works, are a family run ISO9001:2015 certified company, specialising in multiple sectors of industry for more than 30 years. Our company like many comes from humble beginnings, being established in 1985 by our founder Ken Regini in a friend's garage and then moving to its first premises a few months later after the successful sale of their first themed crazy golf course to Warner Leisure Hayling Island.

Our roots are strongly founded within the leisure and entertainment industry from building themed crazy golf courses for holiday and theme parks. Ken's clear vision for his company and the direction he wanted it to go saw him progress the company into a well-known name within the theming industry with numerous local theme parks and securing long running contracts with a London based company called Prop Shop.

Throughout the 1990s DK produced and worked on contracts such as the construction of a 30 foot tall Bugs Bunny that involves taking moulds from a sculpted model then using the mouldings taken to build a giant Bugs Bunny around a structural steel framework.

DK FIBREGLASS WORKS, A BRIEF HISTORY

At DK Fibreglass Works, we have a very rich history within the theming and leisure sectors.

We have worked with a multitude of companies since we were founded in 1985 working on all manner of theming creations, props and displays, throughout the years we have worked with; London Prop Shop, Cubic Design and 3D Creations to name but a few in which they required our expertise and contracted us to either assist them with their projects and in many cases our team would take on the entire project to be completed start to finish in house here at DK! These projects often went on to their final destinations being places such as; Legoland Windsor, Harrods, Woolworths, British Home stores, ITV and Anglia TV, among numerous other companies, these projects could be anything and everything from props for window displays in London for the holiday seasons to Egyptian Pharaoh statues, giant Lego wheels, alien flying sources.

We were also commissioned by London Prop Shop to produce sets of the famous Looney Tunes characters which were used for various displays over the world and even created a 30ft tall Bugs Bunny for a movie premier in Germany.

In our past we have been lucky to work on projects for a couple of international music groups such as The Spice Girls where we were commissioned to sculpt and build giant icicles and Iron Maiden for which we created a Eddie their mascot giant head for on tour.

We have a strong history in working with theme parks and have worked with local theme parks over the years such as Pleasure wood Hills, where for example we would carry out maintenance on rides including the log flume repairing the seats and main body of the ride itself through to producing new seats.

We have also worked with a local company to manufacture the famous and historic snails at Joyland which are being used for a festival in the seaside town of Great Yarmouth, these are to be placed throughout the town to celebrate the rich history of the towns famous promenade that holiday makers travel to visit every year.
